
Title: Notes

Author: Barl De'abreago

Might I suggest installing an extra segment
about..for lack of better words..unity under oblivion..as well as obedience..I welcome more draw into the order..though arrogance is and prejudice are common among my species..and old habbits die hard..

I agree completely. We need to work together,
or else we will be
consumed by the virtuesworn. I plan to teach the basics of the religion.

Power over fey and the forrests..This is where your original idea comes into play...This could be a way to turn enemies
against eachother..

Please elaborate as to what you mean?

Faith was just now explaining that they elves are coming out in larger numbers and aiding the humans, specifically those of Sanctus in this case.
Being that Sanctus is a looming threat, and the elves have become to be so..we do not want them uniting..Futher.

She was specifically mentioning elven influence over few creatures and nature...You recently spoke to me of serving oblivion in less obvious ways..such as through nature..If we were to do so successfully..the Elves could be blammed..thus..turning enemies which could be allies, against eachother..

A good idea. As well, I passed a note to Faith about being cautious about the hostess. We need to throw her off, make her think our intention is simply to defend ourselves. Tell Izrem this plan, I doubt the hostess understands drow

What do you make of her? I do not trust her, however she would make a good ally against the elves, I see no reason for her to betray us for them.

She is capable, nbut not trustworthy. When I lead the drow house she served under me..and was loyal..until another drow female started making noise..then she seemed to change her mind..She wanted power and I wasn't giving her enough..in this situation..our goals are not far apart..Though I do not trust her at all..I see that she could be useful..and is no real threat to us..